

Lawmaker Calls for Candy Warning Labels

The PIXPage Staff

A Bay Area lawmaker wants warning labels put on a controversial candy.

Congressman Mike Honda says the federal government needs to regulate candy as strictly as it does toys, to help prevent kids from choking.

Honda points to gel candy as particularly dangerous. The candy has a sticky texture that makes it difficult to dislodge once it is trapped in a child's throat. It's been blamed in the deaths of two Bay Area children, and some kinds have been banned by the FDA.

» 10-29-2002

Previous Coverage:

- Kids' Fruit Snack Linked to South Bay Deaths

Latest Local Headlines:

- FATHER ARRESTED AFTER LEAVING KIDS IN CARE OF TRANSIENT
- COAST GUARD CALLS OFF SEARCH FOR MISSING MEN AT PANTHER BEACH
- CDF ISSUES SAFETY TIPS FOR HALLOWEEN
- ELDERLY WOMAN DEAD FOLLOWING SAN JOSE ACCIDENT

©MMI, CBS Worldwide Inc. All Rights Reserved